

South Australia's Eden Valley and Barossa Valley sub regions make up the Barossa where uniquely both cool and warm climates exist in the same region.

The influence of structure and finesse from Eden Valley and the power and richness of Barossa Valley results in wines to enjoy upon release and with cellaring capabilities for the coming decades.

With an impressive 45 years in the wine industry, including two decades as Chief Winemaker at Yalumba - Australia's oldest family-owned winemaker - (Hill-Smith Family Estates), Simon Sorby Adams remains steadfast in his commitment to traditional winemaking techniques, precise oak selection, and showcasing the distinctive characteristics of the Barossa wine region - his home.

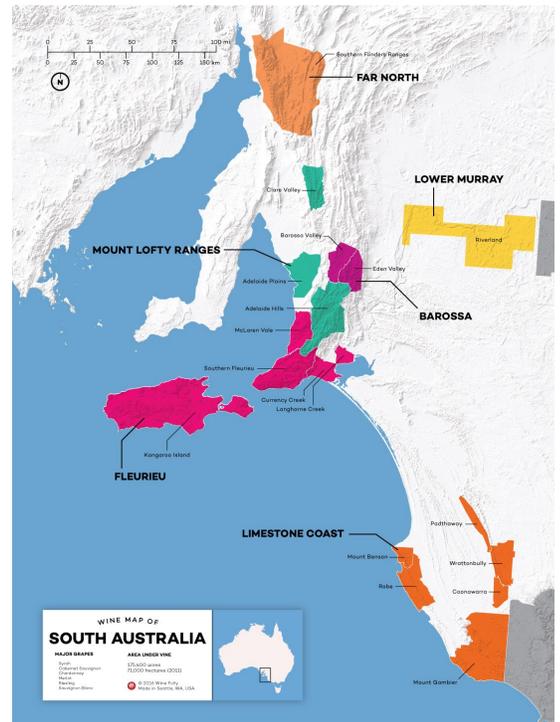

Continuing this with his own Sorby Adams Barossa wines established in 2004, Simon with wife Jill collaborate closely with family growers in Australia's Eden Valley and Barossa Valley to produce his collection of premium and ultra-premium Sorby Adams wines.
